Vol 2 No 2 December 15th, 2008

Guidelines for Submitting Your Errorscope Material

- Submissions should be original works for which you own the copyright. Otherwise, written permission from the owner is required.
- By submitting material for Errorscope, you also grant permission to CONECA to reproduce the same material on the CONECA web site.
- If you're on the internet, send your material via e-mail to FLRC@AOL.COM or JLITALO@YAHOO.COM. You may type the material directly in an e-mail or send it as an attached file (MSWord is preferred).
- If you're not on the internet, send your material on a 3.5" PC-formatted disk. This will eliminate re-keying and ensure greater integrity of your material.
- If you need to send only a paper copy of your article, please try to send typed copy that is clearly readable. A legible handwritten copy is also acceptable.
- Send scanned photo files or actual photos with your material. Do not send a printout or photocopy of a photo as these cannot be used in the Errorscope.
- When taking photos to accompany your material, use a background of a contrasting shade (i.e., light background for a Lincoln cent, dark background for a Jefferson nickel).
- Errorscope is produced using QuarkXPress 5.01 for the PC. Display ads can be accepted in either Quark or in Adobe's PDF format. Please write the Editor when considering advertising in Errorscope.

A 1993 cent with an extra profile of Lincoln's face

by Mike Diamond

A few weeks ago BJ Neff sent me photos of a 1993 cent discovered by Mike Hauss. It showed a second profile alongside Lincoln's face. BJ reported that the "extra face" had slight relief. He sent the coin along to me for examination and I was able to confirm that the extra face did stand slightly above the field.

The question now is, what kind of doubling does it represent? Since the extra profile does show slight relief and since the copper plating is not disturbed in any way, it can't be "split-line doubling" or any sort of plating disruption. There is no evidence of a double strike. It really doesn't resemble machine doubling since the primary design is not disturbed and the secondary design doesn't show the familiar marginal shelving one associates with machine doubling. The slightly offset positioning of the extra profile is also not consistent with machine doubling. None of the preconditions for a stutter strike are present, so we can dismiss that explanation. It's clearly not ejection impact doubling, since that would only show up on the areas of highest relief. A doubled die is out of the question. It's possible that we're dealing with a "Type II counterclash", but I'm not entirely comfortable with that diagnosis, either.

At present, it will have to be filed away in the suspense account until other specimens come to light. ■

Next Issue of Errorscope

by Jeff Ylitalo

We continue to push the Errorscope on-line supplement for everyone to enjoy. The next exciting issue of Errorscope is jam packed full of great pictures, articles, updates, and best of all, knowledge for all! With that, lets briefly review what is up and coming in the January February 2009 issue of Errorscope!

1. You won't want to miss the exclusive breakdown of this feature on the first state quarter in this issue of Errorscope. This discovery will have you looking twice at Delaware state quarters once you learn what to look for!

2. Anyone ever been mystified by the U.S. Mint attempting to re-engrave design elements? This author shares details of a one year type coin and I'll give you a hint,.... it deals with proof coins. Imagine that!

3. A highly useful and publicly shared user's guide concerning error coins provides us a detailed breakdown of familiar and not so familiar terminology. It is 'comprehensive' in nature and published for the first time in Errorscope! It is knowledge laden and logic driven which has been accumulated over time by a sage error collector and researcher.

4. We get to look in depth at a one year bimetallic coin suffering from a serious malady. Close examination compels the sanest of mind to slip out of control as to how the ring and core managed to stay joined together. It is a wonder.

5. We get our second chance at the on-going Shield nickel series and it does not stop with this issue of Errorscope. It is the second installment of a six part series which continues to run throughout 2009 new year! For anyone who devotes their time, money and effort to the Shield nickels series, there is some exciting news and critical updates in the works. You will not want to miss it.

Don't delay, subscribe to, or renew your subscription to Errorscope today. You can do this here on our web-site, just look for the Pay-Pal button, its never been easier to join or renew! ■

The behemoth gap between ring and core shown here on this bi-metallic coin could snap open and closed if it were alive. Find out how this incredible yapper has managed to keep its jaws from becoming completely unhinged in the next issue of Errorscope.

Note Regarding Submissions

— An Examiner diagnoses and describes mint errors. He's a diagnostician.

— An Attributer compares a submitted variety to the list of known varieties and tries to find a match. If there's no match, he assigns it a new CONECA number (or if it's a world variety, a new number in the Variety Coin Register).

— Potential submitters should first contact their chosen expert by phone or e-mail to make sure they can accept your coins and are not struggling with a backlog.
